

To the FCC,

There is no compelling interest at present for the federal communications commission to move to overturn or otherwise mitigate New Jersey's current consumer protection legislation regarding unsolicited telephone sales and marketing. The so called "Do Not Call" legislation has had a positive effect on the lives of the millions of New Jersey residents who signed up for protection from unsolicited callers. The State of New Jersey is the proper governing authority for such issues touching on the regulation of intra-state commerce. The citizens of New Jersey are capable of repealing any such legislation they deem undesirable through their elected representatives. There is no need for federal intervention in this matter.

Yours,

Ed Beckett
